The term sample of behavior refers to an individual's performance on tasks that have usually been prescribed beforehand. The samples of behavior that make up a paper-and-pencil test, the most common type of test, are a series of items. A technical interview typically features questions that are specific to the role you have applied for. These might include brain teaser questions and/or numerical reasoning questions. Technical interviews are generally used to assess candidates for technical or specialist graduate job positions (such as jobs in IT, engineering and science), rather than for general graduate schemes. The best way to prepare for questions about your strengths is by doing as much preparation and practice as possible. Jobtestprep has some useful information on this question in particular, and an online tutorial with over 100 interview questions answered in detail.
